and the crop was to be increased by a greater | Central, 32%; Illinois Central, 102; Union breadth of planting. After the war it was found that many of the most expensive works had been destroyed, or, at least, that they had fallen into decay. Upon the resumption of the industry it proved disastrous to many who engaged in it, and for the reasons that labor was dear and uncertainty and taxes were higher than ever before tain, and taxes were higher than ever before laid. With the existence of these conditions it became necessary to adopt new methods, but this could only increase, and is in a most solid condition for ditte be done by degrees, and now, after many trials, extending over five years, the following rules have been established on the most successful plantations: First, to diminish the market is extremely firm, and in meats Foreign Fruits—Quoted: Lemons at $11611 50 the area of land on which a given amount of it also shows a steady increase. Meats at sugar is grown, in comparison with the old time practice, and second, to force this smaller surface, by fertilization, by drainage, and thorough culture to the highest practicable standard of production. Thus the finest soil on the estate is selected for cane, while that which would only return the average of former years is left to lie idie. Further, it is an aim to introduce improved machinery as soon as means can be obtain. machinery as soon as means can be obtained, not but that formerly it was of a high order, but it is the object to get such as is the nearest perfect. It has been demonstrated that when land has been brought to a high state by deep tiliage and the use of fer-tilizers less labor is required to make cane grow; that money for manure is cheaper than labor expended on poor soils, and that 100 acres of good cane is much more profitable than 200 acres of medium. By the improved culture the cane comes forward rapidly; insects, drouth and other adverse natural causes operate with diminished force, while fields of fifty to one hundred acres present an even and rank growth often becoming twelve feet high early in the season. The cost of producing sugar is from six to eight cents a pound, all ex-penses included, while the molasses furnishes additional profit. The wages are higher than are paid in any other industry in the south. Common hands get $26 month, or its equivalent in house rent, fuel and perquisites; and engineers, sugar-boilers, and skilled machanics, three times as much. Nothing is truer in the south than that wages are high wherever the leading industry is profitable. The new system above referrened to indicates, in our judg-ment, the true way to make sugar farming. Ryz—But little on the mark or any other farming, pay; that is, the set-ling down persistently to the practice of growing the most that is possible to grow on a few acres. Sugar making, however, can not be conducted on what we call become general; and as every sugar maker now owns his mill, costing $20,000 and upward, comparatively large breadths of land must be in cultivation. To grow one hundred acres of cane yearly will require as manyas four hundred acres in the estate. As to the harvest of the past season, the accounts are unfavorable, owing to frequent rains early in the year and as every sugar maker Cement is quoted at $2.25 per barrel. Plaster Paris—Michigan, $3.25(350; Newark, $3.75 per barrel. Lime—Huntington, 34c; Flat Rock, 30c per bushel. White sand, $4 per barrel. Fire brick, $35 per M. Fire clay, 85c per bushel. Building brick, $6.50(39, according to quality. Lath, pine, $3.50. Hair, 35c per bushel. Nails, 185 (38, $1.50; 8s and 9s, $4.75; 6s and 7s, $5; 4s, 155. are unfavorable, owing to frequent rains early in the year and so late as the first of July. Consequently it was impossible to work the cane except on ground which quickly discharged superfluous water, and the crop is estimated at two-thirds, or about eighty thousand hogsheads. However, Lousiana is not alone among the states in having a short crop, for the complaint is general and if it were not for the large surplus held over from the preceeding year, we would now be met with absolute scarcity.

The European situation is reviewed by the Mark Lane Express, Dec. 22: Business has been characterized by dullness, but with some firmness, showing the general opinion that with the coming spring prices will be strong, from the large drafts made on moderate stocks in granary. Paris has again slightly declined as respects flour, and the wheat trade there, as in the provinces, has been dull; but at Marseilles and Bordeaux rates are maintained; Germany keeps very rates are maintained; Germany keeps very steady, and though the Vistula has remained open, and brought better supplies to Dantzig, wheat of the best quality has fully maintained its former value. It is the same at Hamburg, and as there has been intense frost at Odessa, there can not be heavy arrivals thence. In Switzerland, Italy and Algeria high rates continue, as well as in Egypt. Maize has risen from 27s to 37s per quarter, with good demand.
An interesting summary has been furnished the St. Louis Democrat by the Hon, J. R. Dodge, the government statistician in the bureau of agriculture at Washington, with the subjoined statement of the crops of corn and wheat grown in the grain states of the Mississippi basin in 1873, compared with the same crops of 1872:
